

1. A collar protector for preventing the accumulation of soil on the surfaces of a garment collar during wearing thereof, said protector being formed of disposable planar material comprising: an outer collar member having a configuration corresponding to that of said garment collar, and longitudinally-
5 foldable to overlie said garment collar when said garment is worn; and an underlying member, interconnected to said collar member at a segment of an edge thereof to extend downwardly beneath an inner surface of a garment attached to said garment collar.
- 10 2. A collar protector in accordance with claim 1, made of non-woven fibrous materials.
3. A garment protector in accordance with claim 1, in which said collar member and said underlying member are formed integrally.
4. A collar protector for preventing the accumulation of soil on the 15 surfaces of a garment collar during the wearing thereof, said protector being formed of disposable planar material and comprising an outer collar member having a configuration corresponding generally to that of said garment collar, and longitudinally foldable to overlie said garment collar when said garment collar is worn; said protector having an inner surface contacting said garment collar and 20 coated adhesive areas contacting said garment collar to maintain said protector in position during wearing of said garment collar.